Fellows

Well the Art Show is almost finished and appears to be a spectacular success. Behind the scenes it has not been all smooth sailing and the High Rise Team on the Art Spectacular Committee will be attending the debrief next Wednesday. We intend to voice our concerns over several issues and then in due course report back to the club with our recommendations. In the meantime Jennifer Eathorne the Treasurer on the Committee is researching previous income levels to see how this year compares.

Christine and I are absent this week due to a long overdue trip to Aotearoa, Land of the Long White Cloud. Hopefully just in time to see the Black Caps claw their way back in to the cricket series but I'm not holding my breath. We will be back for next week and then we are all in to the Easter break. Those of you who are into fishing can probably hear them jumping already.

The Board met last Monday and there are a number of activities and projects to finish over the next few months before the end of the Rotary year. However, the reality is that we are rapidly approaching a transition phase as changeover is due in June which may leave only two or possibly three more Board meetings to go.

Situation Vacant

Gary McDonald has done a great job on the Hot Air for the last couple of years. Gary is now ready for a well deserved break. As we all know it's not about what you get out of Rotary it's about what you put in. We are looking for a bright and innovative Trainee Editor, Print Setter, News Reporter, Graphic Design Artist, Gossip Columnist and Distribution/Logistics Manager all rolled in to one. Think you can help? See Gary for more details or talk to me. Yours in Rotary - President Vic

Wesley surgeon receives outstanding Rotary Communicator Award

Wesley Maxillo-Facial Surgeon and Rotarian, Dr John Arvier, was recently awarded a 2009 Communicator and Leader of the Year award from the International Toastmasters Group. Toastmasters District 69, Australia, nominated Dr Arvier for the award for his communication skills in his presentations, made on behalf of Rotary Oceania Medical Aid for Children (ROMAC), to Rotary clubs, fundraising events and to professional medical bodies, to attract support and medical expertise from a wide range of medical peers. He was also nominated for his role in assisting with the management of patients brought to Australia by Rotary, as well as providing training for doctors and medical students overseas, where he has worked to overcome communication barriers of distance, language and social issues. Dr Arvier said he accepted the award on behalf of The Wesley Hospital and Rotary, for their services to the overseas patients. Dr Arvier along with many other doctors, nurses and allied health staff at the Wesley, work together with ROMAC staff to provide medical aid and support to children from third world countries with facial and other deformities.
